To whom it may concern:

As director general of International Sports Broadcasting Company, I would like to express my interest in working with Velosolutions not only for its personal touch, but also for its professionalism and knowledge of the sport. Whether it's in Europe or Asia, Velosolutions is a great organization to align with to promote a professional cycling event.

It's not an easy task setting up for the live television coverage of a cycling race in a foreign land but through due diligence Velosolutions typically make this happen with ease time and time over and over again.

A great group, great friends and professional to the finest point.

Sincerely,

Ursula Romero
Director General
